Singapore Graduation Convocation Saturday November 5th 2011

The St Clements University Singapore Graduation Convocations are very well run events. All graduands (people who have completed their degree but not formally graduated) are encouraged to consider going to Singapore to graduate. Photographs are taken and a very professional video is made of the event and given to all graduates as a memento of the occasion.

Singapore is one of the great cities of the world and if you have not visited it before use this Graduation Convocation as the reason for seeing it.

For further information and booking details contact Mike Lee at: mike.lee@gmdc.com.sg

Liberian Update

Dr. Wayne Pace, Professor Dr. Johan Potgieter and Dr. David Le Cornu visited Liberia from Sunday 10th July to Sunday 17th July. St Clements University College has completed its first Semester with 107 students and is currently recruiting students to start in August. As well as the four (4) existing Associate programs (Marketing, Development Studies, Banking & Finance and Procurement Management) it is planning to offer Mining Engineering and Mining Technology. During the visit the delegation visited the Ministry of Mining & Petroleum to seek support for the new proposed Mining programs and the meeting went very well.

A meeting was held with Dr. Dennis of the University of Liberia and he proposed the possibility of joint degree programs between our two organisations. Dr. Pace will work on the details of such an agreement.

Meetings were held with the students, staff and senior staff. The delegation appeared on one of the television stations promoting the new proposed Mining programs. On Friday the 15th a dinner was held celebrating the completion of its first semester. A number of members of the press attended the event.

Philip Kotler's 80th Birthday Celebrations in Bali, Indonesia

Professor Dr. Nagar Lai in Bali celebrating the 80th birthday of Philip Kotler, the best known guru in modern management.

Professor Dr. Nagar Lai, Assistant President of St Clements Swiss Private University, met Philip Kotler in his opening of Marketing 3.0 Museum in Bali. During the celebrations Dr. Lai exchanged views with Philip Kotler on a number of marketing issues.

During the past 30 years, two management gurus' names are known to every university student and senior management, namely Peter Drucker and Philip Kotler. After the passing away of Peter Drucker, Philip Kotler remains the best known management guru still alive.

He serves as honorary advisor of the Indonesian government and helps to promote the country to the rest of the world. In recognition of this the Indonesian government has honored him by forming the first Marketing Museum for his recent work, Marketing 3.0. In this museum his concept of how a corporation or charity organisation can give best value to the customers they want to serve is recognised. Corporations need 'good' customers, at the same time they should devote building 'values' to serve the needs, or guide the needs of their customers.

Corporations need to be honest and do good things, as in this internet related world, everything good and bad can be seen easily, and spread at the speed of light. Doing good things (like Cosmetic companies forming Lady Live Young Research Center), that touches the heart of their customers, would be rewarded.

After the opening of Kotler's museum Dr. Lai celebrated with Asia Marketing Association leaders and officials in celebrating Philip's 80th birthday. Miss Universe contestants also joined in on the celebrations, their beauty attracted lots of attention and added value to all guests that joined the party.
